About our 2016 Distinguished Alumna

Nancy Godfrey, RN, PhD, has led a remarkable 35-year career tackling health and social issues in more than 20 countries. After caring for refugees in Sudan and Thailand, Dr. Godfrey obtained MS and PhD degrees from the London School of Economics, where she studied community health and social policy. She joined USAID in 2001 and is currently a program director in Iraq. Dr. Godfrey is the granddaughter of public health nursing pioneer Lucile Williams Brown, daughter of Athleen Brown Godfrey (alumna and professor emerita, University of Utah, and a leader in mother and child nursing), and niece of Lillian Brown Williams (University of Utah nursing alumna and former director of nursing at the National Children's Medical Center in Washington DC). Dr. Godfrey is honored to be the mother of Johannes Godfrey.
