Recognition:

Dr. Nancy Allen has been named a Fellow of the Association of Diabetes Care and Education Specialists, and will use the distinction FADCES. Dr. Allen was recognized for her contributions to diabetes clinical practice, research, and health policy. There are fewer than 100 FADCES in the country.

Grant Award:

The Association of Diabetes Care & Education Specialists Foundation awarded a $20,000 grant to Dr. Michelle Litchman and co-investigators Dr. Nancy Allen and Dr. Shinduk Lee for their project Development of a Diabetes Training for ASL Interpreters. During the upcoming year, these faculty will develop and deliver diabetes training to American Sign Language interpreters to better equip them when translating for diabetes care and education specialists.

Professional Development:

Dr. Nancy Allen and Dr. Ana Sanchez-Birkhead attended the 2022 Summer Institute and completed the New Leadership Academy Fellows Program. The New Leadership Academy Program changes the expectations that surround leaders, leadership, and leadership development across higher education. Learning strategies are premised on a recognition that the demographic, democratic, and discursive foundations on which modern higher education has been built are changing. The NLA curriculum and learning objectives draw upon traditional leadership theory and contemporary scholarship that investigate the roles of leaders under highly contested and complex conditions. Drs. Allen and Sanchez-Birkhead participated in tailored programs and activities, which included online learning modules and discussions, an interactive case study simulation, written reflections, and coaching sessions.

Publications:

Drs. Joseph Allen, Melissa Yack, and Sara Hart guest edited a Special Issue of Metropolitan Universities titled Community Engagement at Academic Health Centers. Dr. Hart and colleagues wrote an editorial and a paper for the Special Issue.
